

New Jersey fine art photographer Jacki Dickert is active in the New Jersey photography community as an artist, teacher, and judge. A salon-level member of the Camera Naturalist Photo Club, she is a popular speaker with the NJ Federation of Camera Clubs and a respected judge for their state-wide competitions. A recently-retired school teacher, Ms. Dickert currently teaches private photography classes, leads group photowalks, and gives workshops to all ages at local venues. In addition, Dickert is a guest blogger for the Printique printing company, sharing inspiration and techniques for other photographers.

Jacki Dickert's photographs have been published in Backpacker, The Sun Magazine, numerous online blogs, and on book and magazine covers. She is proud to have won first place in the Ansel Adams contest at the Fenimore Art Museum. In her mission as an "Ambassador of Wonder," Jacki self-publishes the annual "World of Wonder" photography calendar.

Solo exhibits has been held at: The Pearl Street Gallery in Elizabeth, Art on Main in Rahway; Trailside Nature and Science Center, Essex County Environmental Center, Waterwitch Gallery in Highlands, and the Palmer Museum in the Springfield Public Library. Group shows have included Metuchen's Nails in the Wall Gallery, the Barron Arts Center in Woodbridge, Simply Art and Frames in Cranford, Gallery U Boutique in Westfield, Van Gogh's Ear Cafe in Union, NJ Audubon, Somerset Environmental Education Center, and the Millburn Public Library.

Jacki Dickert is especially passionate about sharing the beauty of the natural world, its visual interest and emotional content. Her images reflect an open and creative way of seeing, often incorporating exquisite lighting and flowing forms. Dickert also enjoys doing volunteer work for local environmental organizations and offering her art and skills for conservation and preservation purposes.
